The Center for Online Learning & Innovation helps faculty, students, and staff use information technology to reach the potential of their better selves academically and professionally. We support information technology use in face-to-face, online, and hybrid coursework. COLI also fosters innovation through technology across campus, in scholarly or artistic creation, extracurricular opportunities, and administration.

On July 3rd, 2018, President John Hurley urged us all to “help improve the student experience.” In almost everything it does, COLI directly supports these efforts.

Goals

I. Full-spectrum support for technology-enhanced teaching and learning, including on-campus events, consultations, and web-based, self-paced micro-learning.

II. Support for online students and faculty, and ensuring that online programs are in compliance with all relevant accreditation and authorization.

III. Supporting select programs and initiatives with projects so that they may capitalize on digital and internet resources.
